12.30 – 13.30	Lunch Break
13:30 – 15:00	Plenary 3. Means of Implementation Talk Show The 2030 Agenda and the Financing for Development frameworks point to financial and non-financial policy issues such as finance (including taxation, ODA), international trade, technology, data, and issues of global economic governance (including policy space and policy coherence) as key Means of Implementation (MOI is discussed under Goal 17 and under each goal) for delivering the SDGs. Appropriate policy instruments will help meet the SDG targets, but more importantly, the absence of the correct policy framework will actually act as a barrier to sustainable development. Moreover, these policies are not operating in a vacuum but under specific economic-political-social structures of capitalism, patriarchy, feudalism, militarism and conflict situations, as well as under global power structures such as colonisation and historical north-south relations. This discussion will tackle updates on MOI, including science, technology and innovation, financing for development, and partnerships and how they are impacting the implementation of the A2030 (with focus on the HLPF themes) in the region. Facilitator: Ranja Sengupta, Third World Network, co-chair of APRCEM &amp; Julius Cainglet, Federation of Free Workers/ITUC AP, Trade Union and Workers <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Overview of the MOI discussion: the setting of global governance framework including trade and mega-FTA agreement and how they are impacting the implementation of 2030 Agenda   Ranja Sengupta, Third World Network, NGO Constituency focal point and co-chair of APRCEM (10 mins)</li> <li>● Unpacking Partnerships in the Implementation of 2030 Agenda   Julius Cainglet, Freedom for Workers, Trade Union and Workers Constituency (10 mins)</li> <li>● Science, technology and Innovation and the implementation of 2030 Agenda   Neth Dano, Action Group on Erosion, Technology and Concentration (ETC Group) - 10 mins</li> <li>● Official Development Assistance and the implementation of 2030 Agenda   Yodhim Dela Rosa, Reality of Aid - Asia Pacific - 10 mins</li> <li>● Taxation and Illicit Financial Flows   Titi Soentoro, Aksi for Gender, Social and Ecological Justice - 10 mins</li> </ul>

List of Workshops

Peoples' Workshop 1.0: Systemic Issues | 25 March 2018, 15.30 – 17.30

1.1. R. 601: Peoples' Rights and Trade: Mega-FTAs and the Agenda 2030

organised by: People over Profit, Asia Pacific Research Network

The SDG 17 of the UN A2030 acknowledges the need for global cooperation, including on trade, to achieve sustainable development. However, new mega-FTAs being negotiated are oriented not according to sustainable development but big businesses' interest for markets and profit. The workshop will look into how the existing trade framework in the region impacts peoples' rights and surface recommendations for advancing SDGs through people-centered trade and development agenda.

1.2. R. 608: 2030 Agenda: A Global Tool to Secure Territorial Rights of Indigenous Peoples and Local Communities

Organised by: Indigenous Peoples Constituency, Women Constituency, Fisherfolk Constituency, International Land Coalition (ILC) Asia - members of Commitment 5 "Secure Territorial Rights for Indigenous Peoples"

This workshop brings together ILC-CBI 5 members, Indigenous Peoples, Fisherfolk and Women constituencies to talk about current development system, its impacts to their territories and threats to the survival of marginalized and discriminated groups in the Asian region. The discussion will include efforts and initiatives of the groups to overcome the challenges and alternative they have to strive towards sustainable development.

1.3. R. 610: Connecting the Dots - Linking Sexual and Reproductive Justice with the Achievement of Sustainable and Resilient Societies

Organised by: APA, with IPPF Saro, WGNRR, ARROW, and APCOM

This workshop will build on the synergies between the different sustainable development regional processes and explore how an intersectional approach can deepen and strengthen accountability and empower the diverse constituencies of AP-RCEM. In order to achieve sustainable and resilient societies, critical barriers such as stigma, discrimination, violence and inequality must be eliminated. As it cuts across all areas of sustainable development, the realization of SRHR for all is critical to the overall success of Agenda 2030.

1.4. R. 613: Technology Assessment Platform in Asia-Pacific: Integrating Technology Justice in the 2030 Agenda

Organised by: Action Group on Erosion, Technology and Concentration (ETC Group), Science and Technology Constituency

Technology Assessment Platform (TAP) is a critical mechanism for communities and civil society to advance Technology Justice by interrogating solutions to development challenges, assessing impacts of technologies and promoting participation in decisions on technology development and deployment. Advancing Technology Justice through TAPs can help overcome systemic barriers to achieving community resilience and sustainable societies such as corporate control, labor dislocation and marginalization of community innovations associated with the Fourth Industrial Revolution. The Workshop will allow participants to experience TAP by scrutinizing key technological solutions to the challenges in food, agriculture and nutrition in the region.

- 1.5. R. 164. Inclusive Policy Making: The role of academes in supporting civil societies in addressing systemic issues.

Organised by: Center for Peace and Conflict Studies - Chulalongkorn University, Thailand HLPF Alliance.

- 2.1. R. 601. Can people's everyday actions take cities towards inclusive and sustainable human settlements? : locally found small ways to achieve SDG 11

Organised by: Centre for Poverty Analysis (CEPA)

This workshop introduces the relationship between existing everyday practices commonly found among ordinary citizens and how SDGs can build on these if the lens of promoters of sustainability can be turned onto everyday operations of the city. The participants will be asked to share their ground level experience on how citizens knowingly and unknowingly take part in building inclusive human settlements.

- 2.2. R. 608: Achieving the SDGs through Integrated Ecosystem Management: Building on synergies across gender issues, water, land and biodiversity

Organised by: Gender Water Alliance, Global Forest Coalition, Krisoker Sor (Farmers' Voice)

- 2.3. R. 702: Just and Equitable Transition for Sustainable Development Goals: a new, gender-just, economic, political and social relationships in the world free from climate change

Organised by: Climate Watch Thailand, APWLD, Green South Foundation, Thepa-Pattani Citizens Networks

Climate change poses the largest threat to human rights and human existence. To address it, we need to profoundly and radically transform our neoliberal model of development that has framed the global economic and political order in the last three decades. We want to hear ideas on how can energy transition be implemented in a just and equitable manner? What elements are required to build a Feminist Fossil Fuel Free Future? Where have you seen shifts that both prevent or address climate change and deliver more gender equitable power in the region? - How do we converge spaces to co-create and collaborate for a sustainable and resilient economy?

- 2.4. R. 610: Tapping the potential of social solidarity economy in ensuring inclusive economy development in cities (SDG 11) and among forest based communities (SDG15)

Organised by: Asian Solidarity Economy Council, Home-net Thailand, Malaysian CSO-SDG Alliance, Bina Swadaya, Indonesia Ripess Philippines

The SDGs provides a holistic approach to development planning drawing a balance between economic growth, social development agenda for the people and environmental sustainability. In addition we recognize how imperative it is to adopt a human rights approach to development in cities (SDG 11) and the very interior -where forest based communities reside. (SDG15). In this workshop the partners from ASEC - Asian Solidarity Economy Council will highlight the changing policy environment in four ASEAN countries - Thailand, Indonesia, Philippines and Malaysia - as well as illustrate innovative practices.

2.5. R. 613: Inclusion of Dalits and other Excluded Communities in Sustainable Development Goals.

Organised by: Asia Dalit Right Forum, Nagorik Uddyog (Bangladesh), Human Development Organisation (Sri Lanka), Samata Foundation, Dalit NGO Federation (both Nepal), PILER (Pakistan), Rural Development Centre and National Campaign on Dalit Human Rights (both India)

'Leave No One Behind' in the preamble of the Sustainable Development Goals document ensures that everyone including the most marginalized communities would be effectively included in the development. This however has been diluted throughout the process of progress of the SDG agenda, where communities who are structurally and systemically excluded have failed to be addressed in the national, regional and international level. One of the most vulnerable communities is caste and descent based discriminated groups, including the Dalits (South and South East Asia), Burakumin (Japan) and Al Akhdam (Yemen). These communities have faced intergenerational exclusion in and have been prone to violence and lack of access to justice and development. This Workshop aims at addressing issues of 215 million people in Asia as well as all the similarly discriminated communities and their intersectionalities to have effective and dynamic inclusion and participation in this holistic developmental model.

2.6. R. 614: The Interlinkages Between the Goals: How community vulnerabilities translate into enterprise-led solutions to transform our world'

Organised by: SDG TransLab, Yunus Center AIT, Global Sustainability Solutions, Center for Environment and Development

The SDG TransLab, an action-research laboratory for enterprise-led solutions to achieve the SDGs, looks to provide to CSO partners a session that brings the scientific analysis of the systems of sustainable development down to a level that is usable and valuable to the realities on the ground. This workshop aims to analyse the indivisible whole of the SDGs and impress the inter-relations between communities, vulnerabilities and SDG targets and the potential of CSO's to foster enterprises that can transcend traditional demarcations, enterprises that have the potential to bring transformation.

Peoples' Workshop 3.0. Accountability to the Peoples' | 26 March, 16.00 – 18.00

3.1. R. 701: Peoples' Driven Accountability Methods

Organised by: APWLD, The Global Alliance Against Traffic in Women (GAATW) Asia Indigenous Peoples Pact (AIPP)

States have recognised the systemic causes of human rights violations and erosion of sustainable development, they have reiterated their promises to fulfil their human rights obligations. However, inequalities within and among countries, between men and women, and between rich and poor are ever more deepening and an overall backlash against human rights in the world and the global climate catastrophe leaves narrower space to hold states accountable. This workshop will share and facilitate exchange amongst participants on the different methodologies and approaches by which communities have held their governments and other institutions accountable. Some of the examples shared will include the Indigenous Navigator Initiative, Feminist Participatory Action Research and Participatory Action Research that has been carried out by various organizations locally, nationally and regionally.

3.2. R.608: 2030 Agenda: New Processes and Forms Accountability: challenges and opportunities

Organised by: Forum of Women's NGO Kyrgyzstan

One of biggest challenge in development is lack of accountability of States, Parliaments, aid providers. Sustainable development requires effective level of accountability and it is necessary to strengthen role of CSOs. Role of civil society organizations is strengthened if CSOs are invited to design reporting mechanism with political, technical and financial indicators on implementation of human rights-based approaches at all levels of development and development finance assistance. This workshop is aimed to exchange of ideas and best practices; discussion and development of recommendations on joint actions and follow up and to strengthen accountability and discussion of Accountability on institutionalized participation of civil society organizations.

3.3. R. 610: Safe, Informed and Inclusive: Achieving Universal Access to Sexual and Reproductive Health in the Age of SDGs

Organised by: The Asia Pacific Resource & Research Centre for Women (ARROW)

Sexual and reproductive health (SRH) is a basic human need and right, and conversations around SRHR and its critical intersections are vital. This workshop aims to unpack SDG 3 and SDG 5 in relation to young people and women's SRHR. We will also examine trends and gaps with regards to reporting on the implementation status and specific targets around SRHR. The workshop will be concluded with key recommendations in terms of improving the review and monitoring mechanisms for SDG 3 and 5.

3.4. R. 613: Probing the state of Sustainable Development in the context of Conflict and Militarism in Asia-Pacific

Organised by: Reality of Aid - Asia Pacific and CSO Partnership for Development Effectiveness

This workshop seeks to critically examine donor's changing aid allocation and accountability in the context of development cooperation in Asia and the Pacific. It will assess how their decreasing ODA commitments vis-a-vis their increasing military aid further aggravate the living conditions of poor countries as well as hinder the aspirations of the sustainable development goals. It will develop CSO advocacy and key messages in regard to monitoring conflict and militarism towards an effective and accountable development cooperation in the region.

3.5. R. 614: Opportunities for CSOs in the development of regions

Organised by: Nash Vek Public Foundation with NGO's of Central Asian sub-region

Opportunities for CSOs in the development of regions. Your region does not develop as you would like it to be? Do you have ideas and want to be useful to your country, region, world? At the workshop "Opportunities for CSOs in the development of regions" together we will develop ways to sustainable development of the regions. You have the opportunity to make your contribution now. Let's see the picture of the future together.

Organised by: Center for Environmental Concerns, Asia Pacific Forum on Women, Law and Development (APWLD), Indigenous People's Movement on Self-Determination and Liberation (IPMSDL), Kalikasan People's Network for the Environment

This workshop on the state of environmental defenders in Asia Pacific in time for the Asia Pacific Forum on Sustainable Development (APFSD) and with UN Environment's new policy on environmental defenders, is a much needed interface among human rights and environmental groups in the region to consolidate and unite on solidarity activities and campaigns that could help raise further the issue in international spaces and engagements, and towards attaining an enabling environment in the region built on genuine democracy and social justice.

4.2. R. 608: Sustainable Cities and Communities grounded in Development Justice: Persons with Disabilities (PWDs) Movements in the Asia Pacific

Organised by: Network of persons with Disability Organizations (NPdO), Asia Pacific Women with Disabilities United (APWWDU)

This is a workshop organised by PWD movements invested and committed to the growing movement of development justice. The workshop focuses on SDG Goal 11 on Sustainable Cities and Communities and grounding these in basic provisions of the CRPD. It engages participants to look into how their countries are faring in terms of achieving this goal while being inclusive and mindful of the needs, realities and rights of persons with disabilities and in particular for women and children with disabilities. It maps out enabling or challenging practices at the national, regional and global levels. It shares recommendations based on concepts of inclusion, gender analysis, universal design and accessibility as basic principles and guide posts by the PWD movement in shaping sustainable cities. All of these contribute towards PWDs genuine inclusion, meaningful participation and living independently and fully.

4.3. R.610: Strategies for Communicating Our Movements Effectively

Organised by: APWLD, Communication Working Group of APRCEM

This workshop aims to build capacity of grassroots movements, civil society organisations and human rights defenders to bridge the gap between movements and issues they work on and media advocacy. The workshop will teach them tactics for strategic media advocacy, pitching news stories, making journalists allies, using social media and creating media campaigns to amplify their voice and agenda.

4.4. R. 613: The Poor are Powerful: Understanding the Occupations of Idle Homes by the Homeless and Bridging Solidarity

Organised by: KADAMAY, People over Profit, APRN

A workshop to introduce and dissect the recent historic occupation of idle homes led by Kadamay in the Philippines wherein more than 12,000 people occupied various public housing sites which had been idle for years. An organized and large scale occupation that brought to the surface systemic problems in housing, homelessness and social services. The movement raises new questions and horizons to approaching SDG 11 and the struggle for adequate shelter. Globally, the phenomenon of idle homes and structures is spreading. Grassroots movements must come together to collectively address this trend and mobilize the people accordingly.
